

UBS Exchange Traded Trackers (ETTs)

The efficient index highways

ETT stands for Exchange Traded Tracker, a product that allows efficient, low-cost and transparent investments in the world of indices.

UBS ETTs are based on total return or net total return indices. There are two types of share indices: total return and price return indices. Total return indices track not only the price movement of the underlying asset, but also its dividends. Most comparable index investments charge a management fee. Most UBS ETTs do not*. As a result, investors can participate fully in the performance of the underlying index.

UBS ETTs are highly transparent investments that track their underlying indices on a one-to-one basis. Furthermore, since they are traded on the SIX SP exchange, they offer significant investment flexibility and liquidity.

* ETT terms and conditions are reviewed annually and may be modified after giving 13 months' prior notice.

Benefits at a glance – UBS ETTs are:

Uncomplicated:

1:1 participation in the underlying asset; no expiration.

Low cost:

Low management fees* and narrow bid / ask spreads.

Efficient:

Dividends are reinvested (total / net total return).

Transparent:

UBS ETTs are tradeable on the SIX SP exchange.

Strategy

UBS ETTs support a range of investment strategies pursued by institutional and private investors – from intraday trading to long-term wealth management:

- Long-term investors are interested in low management fees. This enables them to track the index on a truly one-to-one basis.
- Short-term investors, on the other hand, seek to exploit index movements. As a result, they rely heavily on real-time quotes, tight spreads and high liquidity

Risks

- UBS ETTs are tracker certificates assigned to the SSPA's "Participation" category (SSPA product type 1300). They track the performance of the index on the downside as well as the upside, and thus do not offer capital protection.
- Investors bear the risk that the issuer will default (issuer risk).

Mechanism

UBS ETTs represent a passive investment strategy as products that track the movements of an underlying index. The underlying assets are total return or net total return indices that accrue dividends or net dividends.

Normally, investors would have to purchase the individual index components directly to obtain total returns, which involves additional costs. But this is not the case with ETTs. Instead, a single transaction can give investors exposure to index price movements without tracking errors.

Based on monthly closing value of the index and the monthly fair value of the ETT (theoretical calculation). Past and calculated performance does not indicate future results. Source: Bloomberg, UBS AG
